When you looked grave and would speak soberly.

And vexed you with her 'artful artlesances?'

Whom off you chid, but seemed to chid in value.

Who would not always do your will -indeed.

Preferred to mind her independent edit.

Who would not always do your will indeed Prierred to mind her independent edif.

But then again in low humility ha sweet and mild did seem as were the flowe Sha always wore—trusting implicitly

The words you spoke, with earnest upward loo Acknowledging herself in truth a child—

Until you puzzled were to understand ther different moods—their meaning e'er to know,

And left her—leaving it with coming years
To smoothly win, the bagged, knotted skein
Of many threads, some dark, some bright, you thought.

Made up her christer. So, if at last
You come again, and and that Time has wrought
The change you hoped, and that the childish Have all been dropped somewhere along the road,

And that a woman, only, now it is
To grasp the meaning of your deepest thoughts
And give them wisest answer, while she gams
Your high respect, and shows she has at last Learned when to yield and when to hold her

With you be pleased? With you be satisfied,
I ask? Will you forget the playin laugh
That once your only answer was, nor miss Thegiriish smile, the waywa dness you tried

The elects to be aimed at in warming a house are indicated by the following adeasions—namely, How can the right amount of heat be obtained? How can it be equally distributed? Should it be received by conduction or in the form of raprovides most effectually for the removal of impure air and for the introduction of a fresh supply containing the r quisite amount of moisture, and free from the products of combustion ?

the old-fashioned open fire should be allowed to retain its place in the apartments most in use by the family. When the climate is such as to render additional heat necessary, it should be used to supplement that of the open fire. This torniches in that of the open fire. This turnishes in a most effectual manner what is denominated base ventilation-that is, it causes a current of air from the lower part of the room to pass up the chimney, thus removing that portion of air in which impurities are most likely to accumulate.

A body is warmed by radiant heat when t receives rays direct from a heated ob ject. A body is warmed by conduction when it comes in contact with the heated hody. A pe son standing before an open fire is an example of the former; a person in a room heated by a current of warm air, of the latter.

In a room heated by direct radiation from an open fire, whose temperature as 'udicated by the thermometer is seventy degrees Fahrenheis, a person will experience even a greater degree of warmth than he will in a room heated by warm air

Next door to Marvin Dodd & Co's. with the thermometer at the same point; notwithstanding in the former case the real temperature of the air is much lower than in the latter. There is an evident advantage in breathing ac air which is cool, inssmuch as at each inspiration a larger quantity of it is taken into the lungs, and, ss a consequence, the blood is more per-fectly oxygenated.

For these reasons the sick room, the nursery, and the sitting-room should always be provided with an open fire.

In some houses no other means of warmcraft as ever left milfinery dry dock, is ing may be required; but generally some-chipper build, and with a figurehead not thing additional is necessary. THE HOTEL OF THE FUTURE.-The following which is given as the translation of an article in a Berlin paper, is almost worthy of Jules Verne: "The latest American progress in building will be the mammoth hotel,' soon to be erected in Chicago. The enormous hotel is to have a frontage of three English miles long, and a depth of six miles; the height of seventy-seven stories will measure 3480 feet from the ground floor to the roof.
